UNIT 4 – MANNY THE DOG

attentive / blossom / communicate / distress / meadow / peculiar / recognize / shabby / tidy / vacant

4A Introduction

Dogs can do some amazing things. One real-life dog in Texas named Skidboot could answer the phone, lead horses around on a leash, and would obey nearly every command. Because he was so remarkable, Skidboot went on lots of TV shows and won lots of competitions. The dog in this song isn't Skidboot. His name is Manny. But he has a special talent of his own.

4B Song Lyrics

One day on my way home from school,
I was alone on the street, and the breeze was cool.
Yeah, dudes, but then I heard a little bark, y'all,
Looked down and there was a little dark dog.
He was looking shabby, showing signs of wear,
Like he lived in the street and nobody cared.
Now I don't just pick up dogs off the street,
So I kept walking home to find something to eat.
But he kept jumping around like a leap frog,
Barking at me, I said, "Sorry, buddy, I don't speak dog."
We couldn't communicate, understand each other,
'Cause I'm a human, and he's a dog—you feel me?
But then I realized my mom's gonna kill me!
I left my black backpack back at the snack shack,
I had to be home; I don't have enough time to get it,
I better hustle home now and forget it.
Then I was in distress, feeling pain and nervousness,
Because, I mean, what would happen next?
So I went to my house, and no, the dog didn't,
And my mom yelled at me for 15 minutes.
After 15 minutes, we heard a little "bark"
From the front door, and it was getting kind of dark.
We opened up the door and what did we see?
The dog with my backpack in his teeth!

*Ain't nothing better, than my dog,
'Cause my dog's smarter than I ever thought.
My dog's so clever,
Rocking super dog powers like a barking Jack Bauer.
Oh Manny, Manny's got the plan
Oh Manny, Manny, you the man.*

Now Manny was even better than a nanny,
He could understand me and he was part of the family.
Yeah, Manny was peculiar, strange and odd,
'Cause he could understand me when I talked.
He always paid attention, was attentive,
Like one day I was chilling with my friend Kiv.
I told Kiv, "Man, I wish we had a tree house in the park,
Where we could, like, spy on people..."
Then Manny started to bark.
He bit my shirt a little bit and he pulled on my arm.
We followed him to the park; it was big,
There was a meadow, the grass where the sheep used to live.
It was springtime and the park was awesome,
All the flowers had started to grow and blossom,
And all the blossoms were looking totally awesome.
I saw a squirrel; Kiv thought it was a possum.
Manny kept leading us into the park,
Past the big stone that was shaped like a heart,
To a part of the park I didn't recognize,
Or know from before; I couldn't believe my eyes.
And Kiv started to scream and shout,
'Cause right up above us was a big tree house!
The kid was really good at climbing trees,
And when he got to the top he dropped a rope for me.
There was no one in the tree house; it was vacant,
It was kind of messy and it smelled like bacon.
But hey, man, Kiv and I, we made it tidy,
Yea, we cleaned it up nice, and we made it shiny.
Now it's where we go to spy on the people below,
Or share a secret that we didn't even know.
So, yes, I have a tree house in the park,
Plus a dog named Manny who is super smart.

The Amazing Helen Keller

When Annie Sullivan arrived in Alabama, she did not know what to expect. She had been hired to teach a girl named Helen Keller. When Helen was 19 months old, she had come down with a peculiar disease. The disease left her unable to hear, see, or talk. Now, she was seven years old.

Ms. Sullivan's job was to teach Helen how to communicate. As soon as she arrived, Ms. Sullivan got to work. She gave Helen a doll and taught her how to spell the word doll in sign language. Helen made the same motions with her fingers as Ms. Sullivan. But she did not yet recognize that she was making letters with her fingers.

Their first month together was filled with much distress. Helen behaved very badly. Her parents did not know how to control her, because they could not talk to her. No one even knew if Helen was smart enough to understand language.

One day, Helen and Ms. Sullivan got into a fight. Ms. Sullivan was trying to teach Helen the word water. Helen kept confusing the word mug with the word water. Finally, Ms. Sullivan took Helen outside to a water pump. As the water flowed over Helen's hands, Ms. Sullivan spelled water again in sign language. Helen was very attentive. Then, she got excited: She finally understood! She spent the rest of the day learning the names of everything in her world.

After that day, Helen blossomed. She learned how to read Braille, which is a kind of writing for people who cannot see. But she didn't just learn English; she also learned French, German, Greek, and Latin. She became the first deaf and blind person to graduate from college. She became famous all around the world as a writer and a speaker. And just think: If it weren't for Annie Sullivan, she might not have ever been given a chance to learn.
